

Lemonade Lemon

- A Lemonade Lemon, also called a Lemonade fruit or Un-Lemon, is a cross between a lemon and a mandarin.
- They are round to oval in shape with smooth, yellow skin on the outside and juicy pale yellow flesh on the inside.
- They are not as sour as regular lemons – they are much sweeter but still have a mild lemon flavor. What does yours taste like?
- They were discovered in New Zealand in the 1980s and are grown in Australia and New Zealand.
- They have plenty of vitamin C to help keep you from getting sick!
