Start Healthy Holiday Traditions

Fall seems to start the season of feasts and festivities. Holiday traditions bring people together—family and friends. Around the world, traditions also include eating special foods. But many of these foods are high in calories and low in nutrients. At the same time, it can be hard to stay active during all of the festivities.

Holiday traditions don't have to be unhealthy. You can be the one to start healthy traditions with your family and friends. You can:

- Include healthy options with meals and snacks.
- Enjoy the holidays without food as the starring role. Watch a favorite holiday movie. Put together a puzzle. Create art.
- Get active. After a holiday meal, go for a brisk walk together. Play some outdoor games with family and friends. Try a new sport or activity. Or turn on some music and dance.
- Help a local food bank or shelter. Host a food or clothing drive.
- Participate in back pack buddies. Learn more: <http://feedingamerica.org>.
- Get creative. Make personalized holiday cards or scrap book gifts. It is more fun when you create together.
