

Meet Your Famer

Established in 1989, Aziz’s Farm is a family run, sustainable date farm ranch in California’s Coachella Valley. Covering 27 acres, Aziz Farms has been selling fresh Barhi dates for over 50 years and is the leading global supplier for California

Barhi dates. Currently, every week, the farm collects a fresh harvest and provides about 3,000 produce boxes to children of the Coachella Valley for curbside meal distribution.

Farmer Mark Tadros is the president of Aziz’s farms and a second-generation farmer. Growing up, Farmer Mark worked beside his dad performing many chores on the ranch; he shoveled dirt, maintained irrigation, harvested crops, and stacked produce boxes. As a young adult he went to culinary school and worked as a chef. Twelve year ago, Farmer Mark took over the family business, Aziz Farms, and dedicated himself to cultivating delicious produce.

Aziz Farms provides the most enjoyable and sometimes most unique foods; Medjool dates, artichokes, green bell peppers, Armenian cucumbers, graffiti squash and more. Farmer Mark loves encouraging his customers to taste new fruits and vegetables. Seeing the “change in perception of taste” is rewarding. Also, nothing can be better than “when it is harvest time and the quality of the produce is exceptional”. Furthermore, Farmer Mark states that his favorite vegetable is a cucumber, “They are super versatile and you can enjoy them with a simple dressing or eat them raw with a touch of salt”. There is no doubt, Farmer Mark is committed to supplying the Coachella Valley with scrumptious and exciting produce.
